history

Chotovelli e Figli, translated to Chotovelli and Sons, is a third generation of 'Orologiaio' (watchmakers) from Torino. These new big watchmakers from Torino are known for their bold and elegant designs derived and inspired by gauges and speedometers made by the Fiat Group Di Torino, including Lancia, Maserati and Alfa Romeo.

It all started in the late 1920's with Simone Chotovelli, the first Chotovelli Orologiaio. His craftsmanship and specialty in repairing and restoring old mechanical and automatic movements was known all over Italy. In 1967 he passed the knowledge and know-how to his son Yitchak Chotovelli who continued the wishes of his father and by that carried on the legacy to become a well established watchmaker. In the early 80's Yitzhak decided to branch out from the watch business and moved the whole family to Antwerp with the advent of the family foray into the fine jewelry and diamond trade.

In 2005, brother and sister Ilan and Tamara Chotovelli were inspired to revive the family tradition, launching the unique new Chotovelli line, unsurpassed in workmanship and style. The explosive popularity of these timepieces in Europe is testimony to their fine quality and surprisingly reasonable prices.
